Editors in the Sanskrit introduction,there are three distinct ways of learning Sanskrit grammar. [1] study the astadhyayi according to the order of the aphorisms [Sutrakarma] This has been followed in the Mahabhasya,Kasikavrtti.,etc. [2] study the Astadhyayi according to Prakriya [Derivation of finalized forms] of nouns and verbs. This Method is followed in works like the prakriyakaumudi,siddhantakaumudi,etc. Last,but not the least,method isto study the Dhatus [verb roots] one by one utilizing panini's aphorisms...first published, 1900, Second Edition. 1984. pp 354,46,viii.Rebound. .Rs-750/-

9. O.R.I. Series No: 167: VRTTARATNAVALI of Sri Nanjundakavi With theSanskrit Commentary Annangacarya. EditedVidwan. B.V. Narasimhacharya. The Commentary brings to mind the great commentators like Mallinatha and Ramachandrabudhendra. Peculiarities of grammatical constructions,special varieties of Alankara and perspicuous explanation of material phrases make this commentary very valuable it is obvious that the commentator Annangacarya, a srivaisnavite scholar, should have lived in the later half of the 19th century. He has praised Lord Siva, Goddess Parvati,Guru Renukacarya & his patron in the beginning. Elementary Rules of Prosody are given next. For each metre the definition is narrated & its explanations are given. This work was completed in Saka 1784 which corresponds to 1862 A.D. Mysore,1988. pp 210,30. Rs- 700/-
