Dr.S.D.Joshi, joint editor;- Dr. M.A. Mehendale, Editors; - Dr.
G.V.Devasthali, Dr. C.G.Kashikar,, Dr. P.P.Apte, T.S. Srinivasa
Sastri. Jayashree Gune R.N.Dandekar.and many others.

This work of collectiong the necessary material for this purpose was begun systematically and went on for a period of nearly TWENTY FIVE YEARS.

More than a thousand books were excerpted and a scriptorium of nearly EIGHT MILLION SLIPS was built up. [starting from 1948].this dictionary is based on an entirely new reading of the original texts and a fresh extraction of the material without relying on the earlier LEXICONS. The aim of this dictionary is thus to supply the user with all the relevant information about SANSKRIT WORDS., such as their earliest occurrence,the entire range of their meanings both common and technical, their provenance at different times and in different branches of learning, their status as current or obsolete, their derivation and etymology, and the changes in their meanings in their historical development and mutual relations.

Well –classified and copiously illustrated stock of all Sanskrit words and their meanings as found in the whole corpus of Sanskrit literature.
